Crewe Hall

Nestled in extensive grounds, Crewe Hall started life as a modestly sized Jacobean house in 1615. Much of the Hall has its roots in the mid Victorian era, with richly designed ceilings, exquisite marble fireplaces, ornate carved wood and stained glass features, making Crewe Hall a magnificent location for a break or event.

Crewe Hall itself is a Grade I listed building, housing 26 bedrooms. There are an additional 39 bedrooms in the contemporary West Wing. Fine dining is available in the Ranulph Restaurant or the more contemporary πr^2 Brasserie. The hotel offers an outstanding choice of 11 conference and meeting rooms and is located close to the M6 and just a mile away from Crewe Station.

A Rare Combination of Comfort and Elegance

Crewe Hall has a total of 65 bedrooms. Within the Jacobean Hall there are 26 Deluxe bedrooms and Suites individually furnished, many offer ornate four poster beds. The sumptuous Royal Suite, where King George V and Queen Mary stayed in 1913, boasts a solid oak four poster, which is 10' 6" high.

A further 39 bedrooms are situated in the more contemporary West Wing, connected to the original Hall with a glass link. The spacious bedrooms benefit from air-conditioning and all the facilities expected from a four star hotel.

Dining to Suit all Tastes

At Crewe Hall we offer an array of dining choices. Fine dining is available at the exquisite two AA rosette Ranulph Restaurant. With plush reds and carved panels, the Ranulph Restaurant is a warm, inviting restaurant focused around just ten tables in the Main Hall and serves the finest classical dishes with a modern twist.

In contrast to the Main Hall, the πr^2 Brasserie offers a modern alternative dining experience and has been awarded a coveted AA rosette for quality. With its contemporary, bistro style menu, revolving bar and informal setting it is truly one of Cheshire's finest examples of modern dining.

The Sheridan Lounge, originally Lord Crewe's dining rooms and used as a dining room by King George V and Queen Mary, is a superbly appointed lounge with a profusely carved oak screen that gives it the appearance of a college hall; the perfect setting for a relaxing afternoon tea, morning coffee or pre-dinner drink.
